

I am a frequent economy class flyer of many different airlines. I fly within the US and Internationally. I am opposed to any use of cell phones on airplanes. Please consider the 17.5" wide seats and limited personal space. Please consider fully occupied long haul flights sitting next to someone making dozens of calls morning, noon and night. Flight attendants do not have the time or responsibility to be the cell phone police.....but they will ultimately be tasked with this chore if this policy is approved. If you must approve the policy.....than please make it clear that all phone minutes will be charged at $6.00 per minute!! This way only emergency calls will be placed or received in Economy Class and Business Class passengers can learn to deal with the insipid phone calls and constant ringing. Thanks....Peter Hanley
